

Visibility Report — U Stuff It

3021 E Mulberry St, Fort Collins, CO 80524 · Prepared by Scott Swenson · The Storage Owner's SEO Guy · September 2026

Everything below was verified live in September 2026 — real searches, real listings, screenshots available for all of it. I own seven storage facilities in MN and WI; I look at storage websites the way you'd look at another operator's gate motor.

WHERE YOU RANK TODAY

Search a renter types	Where you show up	Who's winning it
storage units fort collins co	Not on page 1	Guardian, Public Storage, The Vault, Just Store It, Storage Star, US Storage Centers, focostorage.com
storage units east mulberry fort collins — your own street	Bottom of page 1 (and one of the two results is MapQuest, not your site)	Mulberry Storage Center (3825 E Mulberry), Public Storage (3201 E Mulberry — two blocks from you), Fort Collins Storage (3115 E Mulberry, advertising "from $39")
Your own name: "U Stuff It Fort Collins"	You appear — with 4 different phone numbers, a Yelp page marked CLOSED, and a 1-star Yelp rating showing	—

The headline: there are FOUR storage facilities on East Mulberry Street, and the search for your own street is won by your three neighbors.

FINDING 1 — Critical

Four different phone numbers are published for your facility

Where	Phone shown
Your website — homepage	(970) 493-3895
Your website — Rent Now page	(970) 866-0022 (two numbers on your own site)
Google Business Profile	(970) 493-3895
Yelp (active listing)	(970) 866-0022
U-Haul dealer listing	(970) 834-0880
SelfStorage.com	(512) 361-1686 — an Austin, Texas tracking number. A lead-gen site inserted its own number so it can charge for "their" leads on calls that were already yours.

Google cross-checks your name, address, and phone across the whole internet. Four identities means your trust signal is split four ways — and some callers aren't reaching you at all. This alone suppresses map-pack rankings.

FINDING 2 — Critical

A Yelp listing tells customers you are CLOSED

There are two Yelp pages for your address. The old one is marked "CLOSED" — anyone landing there believes the facility shut down. The active one shows a 1.0-star rating from a single review, with no owner response. That pair of pages is the first Yelp impression of your business.

FINDING 3 — High

Your reputation is scattered across four platforms

Platform	Rating	Reviews
Google	4.0	15
Birdeye	3.8	17
U-Haul	3.0	9
Yelp (active)	1.0	1

That's ~40 reviews of history, but no single platform shows it — and the newest Google review says “new owners, great prices,” which tells me you inherited most of this. The fix is a steady review push aimed at ONE platform (Google) so your best foot is the one Google shows.

FINDING 4 — High

The website you pay StorEdge for every month is underperforming

- No structured data (the behind-the-scenes code that feeds Google your prices, hours, and location) — zero on any page.
- A visible placeholder bug on the site: “Please select facilities for this group.”
- No unit-by-unit pricing shown; homepage says “from $49” while directories list your street’s competitor at “from $39.” Your Rent Now page’s inventory can hang on “Loading Available Units...”
- Google associates the listing with “Larimer County” rather than Fort Collins — weakening every Fort Collins search.
- MapQuest shows garbled hours (“12 am – 12 am”) and lists you twice under two different names.

WHAT'S WORKING — credit where due

- Your Google Business Profile is claimed, correctly categorized, and actively posted (the fresh-pavement post in August). Most owners never post at all.
- 24-hour access is a real differentiator — several big competitors close at 6–9 PM.
- The U-Haul dealership is an asset nobody is marketing: “truck and unit in one stop” exists almost nowhere in Fort Collins.
- Your price point ($49 starting) is competitive for the corridor — it's just not being shown where renters compare.
- Website titles and descriptions are serviceable, and the technical basics (robots/sitemap) are in place.

WHAT I WOULD DO, IN ORDER

#	Fix	Why it's in this order
1	Pick ONE phone number and publish it everywhere; purge the other three, including the Texas lead-gen number	Every other fix compounds on a single clean identity
2	Remove the “CLOSED” Yelp page, claim the active one, respond to the 1-star	Stops active damage to brand searches
3	Review push to Google only — templates and timing provided	15 → 40+ reviews moves the map pack in this corridor
4	Website: add structured data, real unit pricing, fix the placeholder and inventory loading	Your street rivals publish prices; comparison shoppers never call the silent one
5	Own East Mulberry: corridor-targeted page (E Mulberry / I-25 / 80524 / 24-hour access / U-Haul combo)	This is the winnable fight — not head-on against the REITs downtown

6	Citations: merge MapQuest duplicates, create Bing Places + Apple Maps, seed the data networks	Locks the clean identity in everywhere Google checks
---	---	--

WHAT TO EXPECT, HONESTLY

Fort Collins is a big, REIT-heavy market. Nobody honest promises you page 1 for “storage units fort collins” in 90 days — the winnable ground is your corridor: East Mulberry / I-25 / 80524 searches, “24 hour storage,” and every brand search converting instead of leaking. Fixes are verifiable from day one; Google’s response builds over 30–90 days as it re-crawls a consistent, single identity.

This report is free either way. Questions on any finding — or want it fixed? Scott Swenson · The Storage Owner’s SEO Guy · storageownerseoguy.com